HOTEL MAN SHOT BY THIEF

John F. Sullivan Gives Battle to Burglar in Brookline Home

Battling with a giant negro burglar in his house in the exclusive residential district of Brookline early today, John F.
Sullivan, proprietor of the Hotel Oxford, was shot several times by the intruder, who escaped.

Mr. Sullivan was rushed to St.
Elizabeth's Hospital, where it was stated that he was in an extremely weakened condition. Three of the five bullets fired at him took effect, one in the chest causing a grave wound.

Shortly before 2 o'clock this morning Mr. Sullivan, who lives at No. 18 Russell street, was awakened by a noise in his chamber on the second floor.

He saw a man in the act of rifling his trousers' pockets, and with a cry which awakened the household, jumped from bed and grappled with the intruder.

WIFE WITNESSES SHOOTING.
Mr. Sullivan threw the man to the floor, but he was up in an instant and, whipping a revolver from his pocket, emptied it at Mr. Sullivan, firing at close range. Mr. Sullivan dropped to the floor and the negro fled.

Mr. Sullivan, a horrified witness to the struggle between her husband and the intruder, called the police.

Premier Breaks With Northcliffe

By EARLE C. REEVES,
International News Service Staff Correspondent.
London, April 16.—"The representatives of the great powers have arrived at a complete understanding on the fundamental questions of peace, and by the end of next week, I hope, the treaty will be presented to Germany," said Premier Lloyd-George in addressing the House of Commons this afternoon.

Lloyd George openly broke with Lord Northcliffe in his speech attacking the newspaper proprietor and accusing him of being a victim of the disease of vanity.

Referring to Russia, the premier said: "I would rather leave Russia to the Bolsheviks than use a way-out than to see Great Britain in bankruptcy. It would be easy to invade, but difficult to conquer. This house would have been rescued. Every number of men necessary for intervention. It would be the greatest act of stupidity."

"We are faced with a complete break-up of three ancient empires—Russia, Turkey and Austria," said the premier. "The new States have been born and the boundaries of fourteen have been revised. Every continent has been affected. The world would like a rest, but the journey is not yet ended. There are still perils."

NEW COMPLEXES PRODUCED.
The premier referred to the difficulties arising from small States, saying they nearly produced inter-Allied conflicts.

"The Balkans stirred all of Europe and we must see that no unrest is created by the peace settlement," declared the premier. He deprecated attempts to sow dissension among the delegates.

It is untrue that the United States and Europe are at variance," he said. "They unanimously declared to publish the terms before they were discussed. I would rather have a good peace than a good press."

5 HURT AS TROOPSHIP RELEASED FOR STRIKES

Sound Liner on Way to Boston
Shore in Canal; Passengers
Taken Off Safely

Sagamore, April 16.—The Meropolitan liner Belfast, en route from Boston from New York on her first trip of the season, struck the abutment to the highway bridge over the canal at this place and was beached to prevent her sinking in the canal.

There were 350 passengers on board. Five persons were injured in the crash, which tore off a three-foot section of the wooden superstructure of the steamer.

The passengers were removed without difficulty after the vessel was beached and were taken to Bussard's Bay in time to board the 11 o'clock train to Boston.

The strong tide in the canal swinging west around so that she obstructs the passage. The steamer Delaware, also from New York, and several ocean tugs with barges, were behind the Belfast and will have to take the outside course, which will delay them seriously, as a strong easterly gale is blowing off Cape Cod.

The Belfast is a steel tugboat steamer and formerly ran on the Boston-Pennobscot River service of the Eastern Steamship Line, Inc. She was laid up in Boston for several months and was recently refitted for the New York and Boston service, taking the place of the Bunker Hill, which was taken by the government when America entered the war.

American Hailed by Operator as 'Best and Fairest'

The Boston American was cheered today by 3,000 telephone girls in conference at Tremont Temple.

When an American photographer asked that the lights be turned up, so that he could take a picture, a girl on the stage wanted to know: "Why this preference for the Boston American?"

A girl in the audience cried:
"Because it is the best and fairest newspaper" and the crowd took up the cry and warmly applauded the sentiment.

2 ARRESTS FOR THEFTS FROM SOLDIERS

The first arrests of members of an alleged gang of soldiers who have been rifling the baggage of returning soldiers were made today by officers of the Intelligence Department.

Two South Boston soldiers are in custody as the result of soldiers' property disappearing after the arrival of one of the recent transports.

The men were questioned by Captain Harry A. Frothingham, George P. Carter and Charles E. Stark of the Intelligence Department. One charged with having stolen money from an officer's clothing, the other with having rifled a private's baggage and taken boots, jerseys and other wearing apparel.

"There is a gang of considerable proportions at work plundering the effects of returning heroes for anything of value was indicated by Captain Stark."

He hopes to get them all within a few days, he said. "The union officers do not stand back of such actions by their members. They are helping us make our investigation."

The case of the soldiers charged with stealing the wearing apparel will be referred to the United States Commissioner, while the man charged with the theft of money will be given a hearing in South Boston court.

Federal and local authorities have been cooperating to catch the gang even since the first train arrived in Boston. Not only enlisted men, but officers, chaplains and war correspondents have complained that their baggage was tampered with,
and articles of value taken.

In spite of the close guard kept on the transports, nobody has been caught in the act of carrying off the property of soldiers, but things seen by these guards started the intelligence department on its present line of investigation.

STRIKE-BREAKER TRAIN COMING

Today's developments in the telephone strike were:

1. Twelve thousand "inside" telephone workers struck at noon in Boston and through New England. These men include wire chiefs, testers, installers, maintenance, repair men and others.

2. Five hundred men of the Cable Splicers' Union struck at 7 a. m. More than 20,000 girl operators and men workers are now out.

3. Train load of strike-breakers from New Jersey is reported due in Boston tonight.
Strike-breakers from Connecticut coming over the road in autos.

4. Boston pickets report telephone "students" being coerced into remaining on duty.

5. Boston girl strikers hold first street parade.

The "inside" workers struck hard when they did it, just as the girl operators did. A sample was at the big Main exchange on Milk street. It was estimated that 800 men walked out, including wire chiefs, toll chiefs, testers, central office repair men, installers and others.

It was done quietly. The men walked out at the noon hour.
After exchanging greetings with girl pickets they strolled away to lunch resorts. About fifty gathered in front of the building to await friends. But they promptly dispersed at police suggestion.

THREATEN TO TIE UP NATION'S WIRE SERVICE

Paralysis of the entire wire service of the country is threatened. The powerful Electrical Workers' Unions are now considering this. New England telephone workers showed the way. The Commercial Telegraphers' Union is taking a strike vote. Wire workers are being unionized from coast to coast. The unions hint that, unless there is a radical change in the attitude of Postmaster-General Burris, the whole country will get what Boston is getting now. John Morley, president of the New England Joint Cable Telephone and Telegraph Workers, said in Boston today he had received official report that 1,000 men telephone workers and 3,000 to 4,000 girl operators had just struck in Connecticut. They are employed by the Southern New England Telephone Company.

Ten strike-breakers were brought to Boston today and lodged at the Hotel Lenox. Phone strike leaders are now asking Senator David I. Walsh to leave the hotel because the management furnished lodgings for the strike-breakers.

AMERICAN FISH MARKETS EXCEED ALL RECORDS

Business at the Boston American fish stores is exceeding all previous records, and Alden A. Mills, from his store at No. 181 Tremont street, reports that thousands of express orders are pouring in.

The action of procuring retailers in combining to prevent Mr. Mills and the Boston American stores from securing fish to supply their customers has apparently acted as a boomerang. The stores in Cambridge, the South End, and Charlestown did the biggest business of their existence, while the stores in South Boston, Faneuil Hall, Dorchester, Lynn, Roxbury, Worcester, Lowell, and Nahua, N. H., reported a slight increase over their usual business.

FITCHBURG RESPONSE.
Hundreds of orders from Fitchburg reaching the office of Mills indicated that the people of that city, over 250 of whom had petitioned the American to open a store to alleviate conditions there, are aware to the fact that the Boston American is out to see that the public gets fish at cost during Lent. The combine of retailers is said to have held a secret meeting. The public may rest assured that it is safe from this alleged combine, for to take care of those sections not covered by Boston American Fish Stores, Mr. Mills has secured many tons of fresh fish, which he is prepared to ship by express.

Mr. Mills is still shipping the following fish:
Bonnie salt codfish in ten-pound boxes at 25 per box.
Whole Canadian salted cod in thirty-pound boxes at fifteen cents per pound.

FINNAN HADDIE AT 18 CENTS.
Finnan haddie in thirty-pound boxes at ten cents per pound.

Freshly caught cod and haddock in twenty-pound boxes at seven cents per pound.

Fine fresh haddock and a wide variety of frozen fish are being sold in the Boston American Fish Stores at five and seven cents per pound. Every fish sold by Mr. Mills or the Boston American Stores is being put out at cost.

The American is keeping the cost of fish down to its lowest level in years during Lent throughout New England.
Today is a fish day! So is Friday! So is Saturday! Buy your fish today!

PREMIER LLOYD GEORGE DEFIES LORD NORTHCLIFFE FOR VANITY

Declares Cost of Continued Intervention in Russia Would Be Too Enormous to Undertake

London, Premier declared that he was trying to get out of his election pledges.

"Every pledge given has been interpreted in the demands put forward by the allies," he declared. "We want peace to be just, but not vindictive and it must be firm."

DISCUSSES RUSSIA.

Questioned by John R. Clynes, labor member from Manchester, the prime minister said that the conference had not been approached by the central government of Russia.

"If President Wilson received any such representations he did not bring them to the attention of the peace conference," said the premier. "If the President had attached any value to them naturally he would have done so."

"We were justified in taking time for the setting up of machinery capable of reading and correcting all blunders," he said.

The premier declared that he was fully aware of impatience throughout the world regarding peace.

But the indicated criticism was not forthcoming upon his return, the premier added.

"The indemnities question is difficult and not one that can be settled by a telegram," said Mr. Lloyd George.

"The difficulty in finding a solution to the Russian problem arose mainly from the fact that there was no central government representing the whole country," the premier pointed out. The question of recognizing Russia had never been proposed, he said.

LEAGUE GREAT EXPERIMENT.

He referred to the League of Nations as a great experiment, adding: "A wonder might have precipitated a universal war which might be near or distant. The Premier was cheered when he said the League of Nations was planned to correct mistakes. It has saved instead of wasted time, he declared.

"Another problem was to arrest Bolshevism, therefore supplying countries bordering Bolshevism territory with means of resisting such invasions," continued the premier. "We do not despair of the situation in Russia. There are promising factors. The reliable information shows that while the Bolshevik forces are growing

Holstenev (Russia) is rapidly waning.

"If Bolshevism attacks the Allies, it is just business to fight," said the premier on Russian conditions. "We must not get mixed up as a battle-brother with Russia with equipment if it does not do us just as much harm as it does to our allies."

THEIR FOR WILSON.

The premier declared again his conviction that any idea that America and Europe are at variance is untrue.

"No one could have treated any more sympathetically the peculiar problems that come up than President Wilson," said Mr. Lloyd George. "Mention of President Wilson's name brought cheers from the listeners. The premier added:

"We have never forgotten that France is entitled to full security against a repetition of the horrors she has been through."

In defending his own course the premier suggested that the entering British newspapers publish his election pledges and the peace terms, when they are known, in parallel columns for comparison.

While the premier was on the subject of government pledges one member asked:

"What about the Kaiser?"

To this Lloyd George replied: "I will stand by all my pledges. I will return to Paris if the House of Commons want it so, but whoever you must have the fullest confidence of the House of Commons."

In referring again to Russia, the premier said that he had longed for intervention would be a sure road to Bolshevism in Great Britain. He defended the aid given to the anti-Bolshevik government, headed by Admiral Kolchak and Denikin, in Russia, because they represent regions of the Russian population not represented at Brest-Litovsk when the Bolsheviks made peace with the Central powers.

RAPS NORTHCLIFFE.

"Their activities indirectly helped to maintain the blockade," said the premier. "Germany could not say they would be exceedingly overpowered their opponents."

The premier said that he did not mind words in his arrangement of Northcliffe, who was his political partner and supporter throughout the greater part of the war.

"The disease of vanity," he said,

Northcliffe and form new political alliances.

It is reported that the Italians will be permitted to retire from the Adriatic and make their own peace with Austria if the allies and the associated powers vote down the demand for Fiume. However, it is claimed that this action would be coming as a complication as the Adriatic situation is now being settled has not with failure, so the great victory over the operation of their claims.

Italy Insists on Fiume

Claims and Threatens a Separate Treaty

By JOHN EDWIN NEVIN, International News Service Staff Correspondent.

PARIS, April 16.—Premier Orlando of Italy, in discussing the Adriatic situation with President Wilson, told the latter that the situation in Italy is such that his government would be overpowered immediately unless Italy gets Fiume.

The present government at Rome would be succeeded by one which would make thecession of Fiume the chief policy, according to Premier Orlando.

The Italians are standing firm on the part of London and are demanding that the British bend the knees in that respect.

It is reported that the Italians will be permitted to retire from the Adriatic and make their own peace with Austria if the allies and the associated powers vote down the demand for Fiume. However, it is claimed that this action would be coming as a complication as the Adriatic situation is now being settled has not with failure, so the great victory over the operation of their claims.

in Service Abroad for American Readers

The Soldiers' Service Bureau of the Boston American is dedicated to the solution of doing things for the soldiers and sailors of their own. It is a service to officers and men alike. Answers to questions will be published in the American daily, and many personal services will be done for the soldiers and sailors as stated below. Address all communications to Soldiers' Service Bureau, Boston American, No. 100 Summer street, Boston.

Persons finding the discharge papers of soldiers or sailors should make every effort to return them to their owners. A discharge paper cannot be duplicated. The War Department can only issue a certificate that the discharge has been given. Frequently the owner loses his original, and would greatly appreciate its return.

After shopping around Boston for a piano, examining, playing and pricing the different makes, people are amazed, yes, really astounded, to find the piano they want on my sacrifice floor at $100 less. If I could only get everyone who wanted a piano to come here and look around I could save the public many thousands of dollars a year.

Here is a new hat, straw pink and rough. The facing is crisp laffeta, and the trimming is a veritable sunburst of pink wheat. At the sides the brim is a bit wider, and at the bottom is a hat to be worn with the trim, flared suit. It is a moderate-sized mushroom model. Shiny, black band, straw is used, with the crown smartly high, and trimmed with gay flowers and wheat.

This is the finest demonstration of the earth's rotation, and recently at Wellington, New Zealand, a pendulum only 11 feet long showed the rotation within 40 secs. after the swing began.

They Treat Pop as a Worm, but the Fish Don't

EDITORIAL PAGE
OF THEWhy Liberty Bonds Sell
Below Par and Why
They Will Rise

EDITOR AMERICAN:

Sir—Why not give the world of small investors a wideawake editorial on the Victory Loan? We are on the eve of this campaign and small investors are asking these questions:

- 1—Why are 4½% Government bonds sold at from 6% to 7% below par?
- 2—Why cannot the Federal Reserve Bank accommodate the small investors by granting them loans on the same basis upon par, or in case of dire necessity purchase them at par?
- 3—Is the Government encouraging unpatriotic speculators who hold back their subscriptions to strip the patriotic small investor?
- 4—Why does not the Government encourage the small investor rather than the unpatriotic non-investor, the "gilt-edge gambler?"
- 5—Who is the worst traitor—the man who steals the plan of the defence of the country or the man who depresses and gambles in the securities that furnish the sinews of war?
- 6—When was a United States bond at 4½% worth less than par, and, if so, what is the matter with the United States or its official representatives?

It occurs to the writer, from comments he has heard frequently, that these questions must be answered or the small investor will not respond in the Victory Loan.

The writer gave two sons to the service, he bought bonds until he bled; he subscribed heartily and liberally to every drive in support of war, and for the first time in his life he took up women's work and plied knitting needles, and, therefore, he feels justified in asking if you publish this or any part of it that you simply sign him as ONE PATRIOT.

(1) Liberty Bonds are selling temporarily below par value because more than twenty million patriotic Americans bought them and there are now temporarily more sellers than buyers. Most of the sellers are parting with their bonds for one of three reasons: First, urgent need of money; second, inability to make payment of deferred instalments when due, and, third, desire to buy other securities promising larger returns. The third class acts unwisely.

(2) Many banks make loans on the bonds up to 90 per cent. of par, whereas on other securities banks do not lend more than 80 per cent. of the market value. Liberty Bonds are the best security for loans in the world. It would be unwise for banks to purchase these bonds at par when they are selling below par in the open market. That would transfer the bonds from individual holders to the banks. This would compel the banks, in turn, to get loans on the bonds from the Federal Reserve Bank, thus enormously increasing the amount of Federal Reserve Bank notes in circulation. To add several billion dollars of new and additional paper money would increase the price of every necessity of life, and wages would not go up as fast. The result would be that every one living on a fixed income would suffer.

It works in this way: The United States produces in crops, manufactures and products of all kinds about fifty billion dollars' worth a year. All this product, including the wages paid to everybody, is accounted for by less than seven billion dollars actual money of all kinds in circulation. If several billion dollars new paper money were added to the currency circulating, the inevitable result would be that every dollar would purchase less than it did before, because there would be more dollars. That would be a hardship and would bear most heavily upon those having the least money.

(3) and (4) The government is doing everything it can to discourage unpatriotic speculators. The Second, Third and Fourth Liberty Loans were made subject to super taxes so that the rich owners could not escape taxation. Small holders of these bonds were expressly exempted from taxation.

(5) Every one who sells his own Liberty Bond helps to depress the price of all Liberty Bonds. But all who do so are not traitors, because some sell from necessity. The other kind of sellers are both foolish and unpatriotic.

(6) The U. S. 4½s were never really worth less than par. They are temporarily selling for less than they are worth, which is par. This is because there are temporarily more sellers than buyers. "Unpatriotic speculators" are not buying them to escape taxes, because they are taxable. But many thrifty persons are buying them, knowing that within two years, or three at most, after the war, according to all past experience, these bonds will sell at par, or above.

U. S. 6s sold as low as 70 even at the end of our Civil War. British consols, then called the finest security in the world, sold at 56 for a hundred dollar bond after the Napoleonic wars. Our 6s, after the Civil War, rose to 130, and British consols rose to 113.

The Rothschilds made their great fortune by buying British consols when all the small holders were selling them from fright or necessity.

The moral is: Hold your Liberty Bonds, if you can; if able, buy more.

Many who buy now are likely to realize nearly 7 per cent. interest annually by selling them at par or above within three years after the war.

Mrs. Phoebe H. Hearst

Born December 3, 1842 Died April 13, 1919

I KNOW a man.
WHOM BROADWAY KNOWS.
AND JUST a little while ago.
HE WAS a youth.
WITH DREAMS.
AND WHAT he dreamed.
WAS THAT some day.
HE SHOULD write a play
AND THAT Broadway.
SHOULD SEE his play.
AND SEE his name.
AND HE was poor.
AND IT seemed to him.
THAT SO were his dreams.
UNTIL ONE day.
CAME A fairy queen.
WITH A magic wand.
AND SHE heard the tale.
OF THIS dreaming youth.
AND BECAUSE she, too.
HAD DREAMED in his youth.
AND COULD still dream.
THE DREAMS of youth.
SHE TOUCHED this boy.
WITH HER magic wand.
AND A new day came.
AND HE was poor.
AND HE worked at his books.
AND HE had no cares.
EXCEPTING the dream.
AND THE hopes he had.
THAT IT might come true.
AND I knew him then.
AND I shared his dream.
TILL his books were closed.
AND HIS school days through.
AND HE started out.
AND THE years went by.
AND WHAT he had.
THAT HAD come to him.
FROM HIS fairy queen.
MADE SMOOTH his path.
AND THE great day came.

THAT SHE has lived

The act of condemnation, important in a busy world, seems to have been lost sight of in France. The Peace League covenant telling what nations shall and shall not do, is written in less than seventy-five thousand words. The Ten Commandments are given in fewer than three hundred and fifty words.

Lucius Bangston, fourteen years old, is told by his father that in the morning he will be beaten for some boyish prank. The boy had been beaten before, by a father who probably told himself that he was doing his duty. The boy got up at night and shot his father dead to avoid the beating. Not a pleasing story.

The fair comment is, "Like father, like son." Was any man ever struck by his son that he had not struck first? The father who strikes his son sets the example and may think himself when the son strikes back.

If gorillas can raise their young to be successful as competent gorillas without blows, human beings should do it. The father says, "Because you have offended me, I'll beat you in the morning."

The son answers back, "I fear your beating, I'll kill you in the night." What will the jury say?

We shall have our little titled class in America. Thanks to the British King's action, General Pershing is now "Sir John" in England, anyhow, and here if he answers, Our General Hickman, commander of the Third Army, is made a Knight Commander of the Bath. He will be "Sir Joseph" and his wife "Lady Dickman."

There is a heavy love a long or a knight are not all English.

Man's Life—How Much?
What Did Russia Do?
Covenant of Many Words
Like Father, Like Son

By Arthur Brisbane

Another is right. The mutiny of American soldiers asked to fight Russians is amazing. American citizens, certain this country would not fight anybody that had not deserved it, are unable to answer the question.

Just exactly what has Russia done to us that the United States should send men to kill Russians? We do not like the government that Russia is trying, these days. We object to murders and brutality to the alleged treatment of women. We also disliked the government of the czar. We did not like the wholesale murders carried out by his orders at Khabarovsk and elsewhere. Yet we did not fight Russia while the czar ruled.

We did not like the Turkish Sultan or his rules. We did not like his treatment of women. We did not like the Turkish Sultan, if reports are true, say, "Every woman belongs to every man." The Turkish Sultan said, "A thousand women belong to me."

We disapproved of the Sultan's notion. But we did not fight him. Latest announcements reduce the German indemnity to twenty-five billion, one hundred thousand millions of marks in gold. Of this amount France gets 55 per cent. England about 30 per cent. This country 2 per cent., or a trifle more.

Are we dead men worth? What would we pay who killed? You read that Japan will pay this country two hundred and seventy thousand dollars for two American soldiers in a riot. That is one hundred and thirty-five thousand dollars apiece. It is fortunate for Germany that she is not called upon to pay so high for every individual on the Allied side dead in the war.

Germany's life if she paid the millions killed in war, would amount to five hundred and forty millions, more than twenty times her indemnity as now announced. Bolsheviks tear down the Austrian and hold the red flag at the War Office. Bolsheviks in Bavaria, has gone to a lunatic asylum. That is the third time they have been sent to a lunatic asylum. That is the third time they have been sent to a lunatic asylum. That is the third time they have been sent to a lunatic asylum.

Mrs. Phoebe Hearst

Mrs. Phoebe Apperson Hearst had lived a long and beautiful life, and it was altogether fitting that death should come to her in the form of smiling sleep—that her summons to leave her home and go to the house God had made ready for her should have come so gently and so graciously.

For, indeed, gentleness and graciousness were the distinguishing characteristics of this fine and beautiful soul.

There is no one to fill the place of Mrs. Hearst in California's contemporary life.

She was not only the beloved Lady Bountiful, but she was also a wise and helpful counsellor, a great force in public affairs that really matter, a builder of good citizenship, an uplifter of character, a steady contributor to the effectiveness of those educational and moral and spiritual forces which, in the long run, alone beat out upon the anvil of time the steel of collective character which rings true in every conflict which decides the destinies of States, either for good or for ill.

A woman who consistently maintained, and herself adorned, all the fine traditions of old-fashioned American home life, she was nevertheless by her unselfish and noble character indisputably the greatest single influence in the public life of California; and there was never a day, probably, when she could not, had she so chosen, have deflected almost any measure she might have felt it a duty to oppose with a personal appeal to the affection and trust in which practically the whole people of California held her.

But neither the tradition nor the habit of her long and useful life inclined Mrs. Hearst to make her real leadership evident overmuch.

She was a silent force for public and private advancement, and her influence was all the more powerful because radiated so silently from the centre of her own wisdom, goodness and selflessness.

A beautiful soul, a stainless character, an exquisitely gracious manner, a most capable intellect—these were the hall marks of the well-beloved lady upon whose grave California will not cease, for many and many a returning year, to lay the tributes of true-felt affection and honor.

Mrs. Phoebe Apperson Hearst lived and died the richest woman in California, not because she had lands or money in abundance, but because she had in abundance the more desirable riches of wisdom, goodness, kindness and that inexhaustible treasury of generous thought and deeds which the oftener it is drawn upon the more it is filled again by the approving hand of God.

In the final reckoning of such riches as Mrs. Hearst possessed—and shared—lands and houses and money are mere incidents of the noble estate that was enjoyed by this high-souled, gracious and beloved American woman.

The things that matter is the long run are the good deeds that one does. Those are the inconvertible riches.

And of those riches Mrs. Hearst possessed here and doubtless took with her a great store, past reckoning save by the carelessness of that Omnipotence which makes equal notes of the birth of the most pigmy and the fall of the tiniest sparrow.

Rich in all goods, she lived her beautiful and useful life, and rich in the love of men and women and the favor of God, she died.

Who, of all the sons and daughters of men, could crave a fairer epitaph!

Voice from the Farm

By Morton Birge

SEE by the papers, Mother, a committee is asking aid of people with homes in Boston to help in the big parade. The people are asked to offer to the use of spare rooms and beds.

For parents of soldier heroes to lay down their weary heads. I hope that the Boston public will give the committee heed.

The hotel man will be awful, according to what I read. We both want to be there, Mother, to see our dear boy in line.

Our boy who is back at Devons, who's feeling so fit and fine. He writes he will send applications for tickets for us to get.

He writes that we've got to be there. That's just what we want, You bet!

But we can't stay out all night, Mother, and travel a Boston street.

I might, but you never could do it. Just think of the aching feet.

We're willing to pay for lodgings. A room doesn't cost a heap, But, if you can't find a lodging, then what will you do for sleep?

But then, let's not borrow trouble. I guess that old Boston town Will not show a laggard spirit and turn the committee down.

I reckon we'll find a billet, some corner to sleep and dine, When Boston just knows we're coming to see our brave lads in line.

YOU'RE NOT READY FOR THE SCRAP HEAP YET. You were married rather late in life and now at middle age you have a young family, and you wonder and worry about the future, and whether you can hold out until Buddy, the baby, gets out of college.

Sometimes you talk the matter over with your life partner and express regret that you did not marry early in years and say that you think it was a mistake that you did marry when you did.

Isn't it too late for such thoughts?

Are you not increasing your disadvantages by voicing them?

It is up to you to make the best of circumstances—to plan and work with the idea that your children are bound to get what is due them in life.

Don't begin to worry till you come to the bridge.

Keep the thought to the forefront that you shall continue active and income-producing just as long as they and you need the money.

What is the use of pushing yourself, even in your thoughts, on the human scrap heap?

Have a higher objective, more confidence in yourself and work toward your highest ambition with joyous belief in the ultimate good, and you will be rid of the greatest hindrance to success.
